Level two water restriction placed on Didsbury

Hot weather increases restrictions on water use but changed back to level one restrictions Monday morning.

by Richard Westlund

A level two water restriction had been placed on the Town of Didsbury, but after improvement in the water supply, restrictions were modified Monday.

Under the restriction residents could not water their lawns at all and limits were placed on the sale of bulk water and a limit was placed on industry.

The move came after the Town was placed on level one water restriction which meant residents with odd house numbers could water their lawns on odd days and even house numbers could water their lawns on even days - the same restriction is currently in place.

Director of Engineering and Operational Services Jean Levasseur said the recent heat wave and a record consumption of water in the Town of Didsbury was the reason for the placement of a level two restriction.

"Last week we had a record water usage and that dropped our levels down quite low and that led to this restriction."

Levasseur said the levels are monitored constantly and that after 5 pm last week the levels went down the fastest.

In order to help the levels stabilize, the restrictions are necessary, he added.

"Last summer was a similar situation," said Jim Romane, Chairman of the Mountain View Regional Water Services Commission. "It's a case where we are a little concerned because we were losing ground at the municipality level."

Romane said the restrictions are in effect for all six of the municipalities that get their water from the Anthony Henday water treatment plant.

Innisfail, Bowden, Olds, Carstairs and Cremona are also under similar level one constraints.

The municipalities agreed a few years ago on the level structure, said Romane.

"We have already seen some response. Showers would sure help though," he said. Summer lawn-watering is one of the largest causes of a shortage."

The Anthony Henday plant already has a planned $10 million expansion which will help in similar situations in the future.

In addition the Commission is working on some water conservation programs to help curtail the problem from the other direction. As of Thursday last week all municipalities were using more than their allocated amounts of water.

Management Board still fighting for casino licence

CAO says lodge funding would be greatly helped by raising money through casinos and lottos.

by Richard Westlund

The Mountain View Management Board is playing a game of hurry up and wait after writing a letter to Minister of Gaming Ron Stevens.

At the end of June the local group, which is trying to raise money to build a new seniors lodge near the hospital in Didsbury, had their appeal regarding a casino and raffle licence turned down by the Alberta government.

Earlier this year they were denied the licences because the group is under ministerial order and has the ability to requisition local municipalities.

"I can't even begin to express how frustrating this has been for us," said Doreen Wilson, CAO of the Mountain View Management Board.

The group wrote a letter to Stevens following the loss of the appeal in hopes of finding

"I can't even begin to express how frustrating this has been for us."

- Doreen Wilson,
CAO of the Mountain View Management Board

a way around the problem. In the letter Wilson made the point that hospitals, which operate under the government are still able to raise funds through lotteries. Hospitals are able to raise money through separate foundations that give the proceeds back to them. Wilson said she hopes the same rules apply to the Management Board as that is the route they will take if they are approved to do so.

Also taking a stand on the groups behalf are the Alberta Senior Citizens Housing Association (ASCHA). There have been other groups in the province that have been turned down for casino licences for the same reasons.

"My position is how are we different than a hospital," said Wilson.

The letters were written to Stevens in mid June. Wilson is hoping to hear back by the end of July.

Meanwhile the Management Group has hired an architect and will proceed with the project. The land use study being conducted around the hospital has not been completed yet, however it is in the review stages. The Mountain View Management Group is also currently looking at the costs of providing services.

Eventually the group would like to have a ground breaking event but they are still waiting on the completion of the study.

If the group is not granted a casino licence they plan to persevere.

"I hope to move forward with it and get it built," said Wilson adding there is still a significant amount that still needs to be raised.

The proposed Didsbury Lodge, which would have an approximated 50 rooms, has already received funding from the local health authority for 20 assisted or support living beds.

Wilson said many private citizens, especially seniors, have already come forward with donations as they want to see the project completed.

The lodge will meet the needs of older adults who require a supportive environment, older adults with early dementia who require assistance, adults with physical disabilities and palliative care residents where appropriate.

Family violence workshops offered to Didsburians

by Richard Westlund

The Community Crisis Society of Region 5 is planning on offering a Family Violence Training Workshop to people in the Didsbury area later this year.

Mona Blunderfield, who is organizing the event, said the group is trying to target those who are involved with children like teachers and daycare workers as they would be the people that come into contact with children who face family violence situations.

Session topics will include abusive relationships, the cycle of violence, children's issues, effects of violence on children, adolescent issues, resiliency, men as victims, abuse of older people, senior's issues, effective communication, crisis intervention, effective safety planning, legal issues, protection against family violence act and the Community Crisis Shelter Service to Region 5.

The training is open to everyone and if there is sufficient interest in the Didsbury community a workshop will be held locally.

"After interest is expressed we will set up a time and a place," said Blunderfield adding that the number of workshops would coincide with the number of people interested in the workshop, which is tentatively set for November.

Contest educates children about smoking

Three-year-old Sawyer Taylor is the Didsbury winner of a colouring contest designed to promote awareness of smoking to preschoolers.

The Health Authority 5 Tobacco Reduction Team has sponsored a colouring contest for preschool children to promote smoke-free spaces.

The contest ran region-wide and a winner was chosen for each district. The contest, along with the Smoke-Free Homes contest that was run in from January to April helps to promote public awareness on the dangers of second-hand smoke - especially to children.

According to Health Authority 5, more and more people are making their homes smoke-free and are choosing not to take their children into a smoke-filled environment.

Ice cream is a favourite treat for Didsburians

by Richard Westlund

Aww, the lazy hazy days of sunshine, sprinklers and ice cream.

And nobody knows the ice cream part of that combination better than Doug Sawyer, owner of Cow's Lick Ice Cream in Didsbury.

About the time school was ending, business picked up. Car loads of teenagers have come over for a cool treat and teachers have treated entire classes at the end of the year.

While most people may think that ice cream and hot weather go hand in hand, some communities react better to the product than others.

"I have sold more ice cream this year in Didsbury than I did in my last year while I was in Olds. And I was in Olds for years."

Sawyer said there are a lot of farmers tending to their crops right now and haven't necessarily had time to come in, but still it has been a good year.

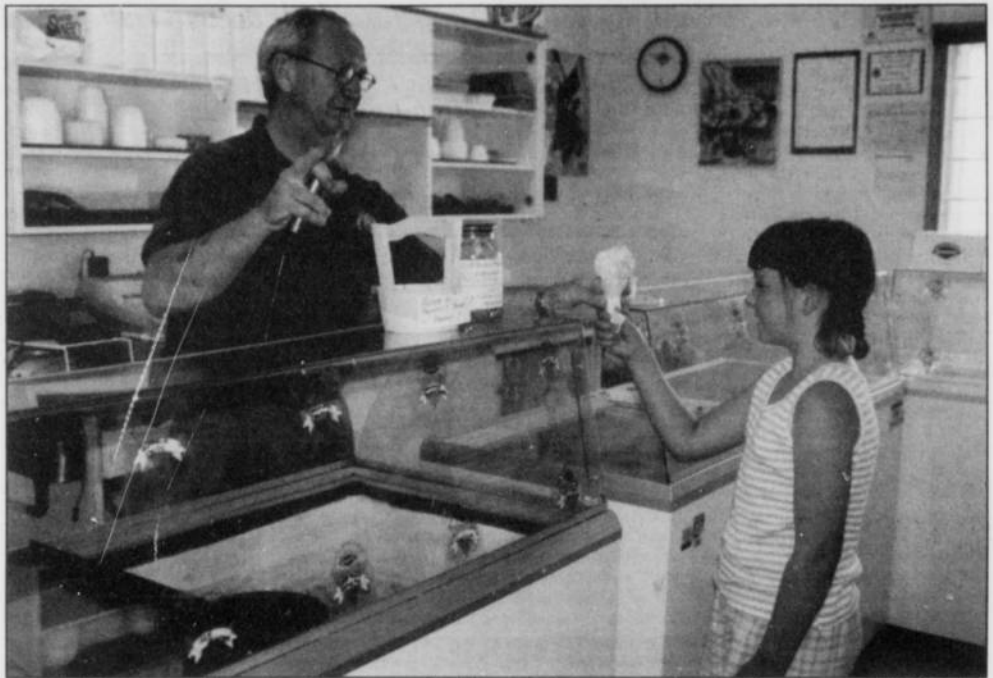

"I wish I had made the move here years earlier, but the circumstances just weren't right at the time."

And while some markets are more inclined for a cool cone, some ice creams are favourites and sell better. Sawyer is reluctant to name just one as Didsbury's favourite but said some pails seem to empty faster than others.

"Bubblegum, Cotton Candy, Mint Chocolate Chip, Maple Nut, Pralines and Creme, Cookies and Creme, Chocolate Peanut Butter and Tiger ... they all seem to be the popular flavours," said Sawyer, who touts 36 flavours in all.

Since arriving in Didsbury business has picked up for the man who sells ice cream and cheeses exclusively for a living. He credits the business mentality in Didsbury and says everyone in town supports their local businesses. From the front of his store he can see the other businesses across the street flourishing and that makes him even more optimistic about the move he made to Didsbury a year and three months ago.

The businessman also has learned something about growth. He used to own two stores and a catering van but admits that it was a bit much.

Cow's Lick owner and operator Doug Sawyer hands over a tasty summertime treat to nine-year-old Miranda Newton.

"Now I am growing, but slowly. That's basically how you have to do it."

In addition to scooping out ice cream into cones, Sawyer also offers his cliental milkshakes. Any kind of ice cream can be used to make a milkshake making for 36 different flavours. And ice cream in addition to being sold by the scoop in a cone is also available in four litre pails. Cow's Lick is open from Tuesdays to Fridays from 10 am to 9:30 pm and on Saturdays and Sundays from noon to 9:30.

Mental Health Unit looking for temporary location

by Richard Westlund

When renovations start at the Didsbury Hospital, the Mental Health Unit will have to find a new home.

The planned renovations include the area where the program is currently housed. An interim solution is currently being sought as well as a long term home.

"Basically we are not sure right now where we are going to be in the interim," said Sue Ramsden, Regional Mental Health Services Manager for Region 5.

Capital Planning and Development for the Alberta

Mental Health Board is currently trying to work out a solution for the short-term location problem. Ramsden, who said she is not the person who will be making the decision, said the Unit may move to a temporary modular site close to the hospital or may find a new location altogether.

She said many factors will have to be weighed while finding a location. There must be handicap access and other risk-management issue will be addressed.

"They are currently looking into the situation and they have a couple months to come up with an alternative."

There is also an issue to be resolved about the permanent home of the Mental Health Unit after the renovations are done. Ramsden said that currently the Alberta Mental Health Board and Health Authority 5 are in negotiations about a long-term location at the hospital. Ramsden said she has "every confidence" that a short-term and long-term solution will be found regarding the issue.

Warrants issued for accused Carstairs robbers

by Dan Singleton

An arrest warrant has been issued for a man charged after the Carstairs Esso was held up by bandanna-wearing bandits on May 30.

Bruce Douglas Cumpstone failed to show up for court in Didsbury on Monday so Judge Anton Demong ordered him arrested.

A warrant was also issued for the arrest of a male young offender also charged following the Carstairs hold-up.

Two other male young offenders made brief court appearances, with both matters adjourned.

The three youths, who cannot be named, and Cumpstone each face a charge of armed robbery.

One of the youths also faces a charge of carrying a weapon for a purpose dangerous to the public peace.

Didsbury RCMP say three suspects, one armed with a baseball bat, entered the Carstairs Esso, located at 520 - 10 Ave. while a fourth individual waited outside in a getaway car.

Following a region-wide police search, a suspect vehicle was located and several individuals were apprehended without incident.

Some property has been recovered from the robbery, police say.

There were no reported injuries in the May 30 incident.

Thompson calls caucus meeting critical

by Dan Singleton

A Canadian Alliance caucus meeting in Calgary on Tuesday may be critical to the future of Stockwell Day's leadership and the future of the party, Wild Rose MP Myron Thompson said Monday.

"I think it is one of the most important meetings we have ever had," said Thompson. "We have to make some decisions where we're at and what we are going to do. I think we all know what the purpose is, that is to figure out what to do with the situation."

Should caucus members be asked to take part in a non-confidence vote regarding Day's leadership, where would Thompson stand?

"I'm certainly not supporting a non-confidence vote. It has no teeth. It doesn't mean a thing because our constitution says our leader is picked by the people and not by the caucus."

Day has been under fire for the past several months, with more than a dozen Alliance MPs leaving or being forced out of caucus for criticizing his leadership.

The rebels say Day has failed to move the party forward, and that he is responsible for the plunge in party support. The rebels also say a series of scandals surrounding the leader have brought on a crisis in confidence. Day blames the dissidents for his and the party's troubles.

The July 17 Calgary meeting had all the makings of an old fashioned western shoot out.

In an exclusive interview, Day warned that any attempt on the part of caucus members to force a non-confidence vote in his leadership would be fought tooth and nail.

"It simply won't be their place to do that. We have to ask ourselves as MPs a tough question: do we believe in democracy? If we do, we cannot overrule the voice of the people. If we do that then we really don't believe in democracy."

Day made a three-hour stopover in the Wild Rose riding last week to meet with members of the local Alliance riding association. Day was looking for support in his ongoing battle with dissidents. Day said only the Alliance membership vote will force him to relinquish his hold on power in the party.

"The Wild Rose board is solidly behind me, but more importantly they are solidly behind the democratic process," Day said. "When we say that it's the people who decide the leadership, then it will only be the people who can change that. Not a group of MPs, not a group of national councillors, and not a group of media."

So you're going to hold the leadership until at least April?

"Absolutely, it's absolutely my goal, yes," he said. MP Thompson has backed Day during the unrest.

Would Myron call on dissidents to give up their memberships so Day doesn't have to face the pressure?

"I don't call on anybody to do anything," said Thompson. "It's not up to me to make decisions for other people. It's up to me to remind people that we have a protocol, we have policies. If you can't live with them, then you probably should go."

What about MPs who may be considering joining the rebels?

"I think they have to make up their minds. I think the time is now. If you're at a crossroads, make up your mind. I never was at a crossroads because 41,000 people put me in place expecting me to be a member of the Alliance caucus, expecting me to be in the Loyal opposition, and I respect that. I'm not going to go out and poll a few people here and there to see what I should do. I've got a pretty strong mandate of 70-some per cent in the election. I know what I have to do and I'm going to do it," said Thompson.

OPINIONS EDITORIAL

Animal Rights

Richard
WESTLUND

Every year the Calgary Stampede is kicked off with a parade and every year people flock to watch the cowboys, eat a corn dog and look at the exhibits.

Also every year there is a vocal minority who become increasingly upset with the use of animals in the chuckwagon races and rodeo. They characterize the Stampede as cruel to animals and voice their opinions through the letter pages of the Calgary media. Rodeo has no place in our society today is the intent of their argument.

There is a problem with the way some animals are treated in Canada - but it has nothing to do with rodeo or Stampede. The people that spend the time with their animals enough to take them to a rodeo of this caliber have too much time and money invested to be careless or unsafe.

Cowboys have a special bond with animals whether it is the horse they ride for pleasure or the bull who bucks him into the side of a set of chutes.

The people that are the problem are those who perform sick acts on animals, like the recent slaughter of horses near Calgary for no apparent reason. Even harder to stomach is the fact that people who are caught doing an act of this nature only receive fines and are not placed in jail.

Which brings me to this point. We can always expect an outcry during the Calgary Stampede and there are those who seem to want to be vocal when a stage is set. But why isn't there a battle during the other 50 weeks of the year? Why aren't letters written to politicians to lobby for changes in how people are punished for abusing animals? Why is it the cowboys, who spend more time with animals than anyone else, who get painted the wrong color each year?

Changes have been made by rodeo associations to make the sport even more safe for the animals - namely in the chuckwagon races and calf-roping. And every Stampede the crowd ends up giving a warm round of applause when a cowboy, who senses something isn't right after roping an animal, hustles over to the calf and quickly remedies the situation while at the same time forfeiting his payday.

Wonderings of the heart

"Ebb & Flow"

by Margaret Fradley

A very meaningful thing for me is to be by the sea and watch the tide come in and go out. When the tide is in with the waves lapping on the shoreline it is a peaceful and a restful time. As the tide goes out it is interesting to see people out walking on the sand bars trying to avoid the tidal pools making their way out to the waters edge.

As I watch the tide come in, it reminds me of the opportunities that come into our lives. They come, remain for a while and are gone. Have we taken advantage of them? The important thing is that just as the tide goes out and comes in again fresh new opportunities arise again. There is so much beauty around us, there are special things each day to see and do, but often due to our busyness we become oblivious to the obvious.

Our days can become full, even with good things, but we need to beware lest we miss the spontaneous opportunities that occur in our lives.

Life can become so much more meaningful and memorable if we take time each day to look for those hidden treasures that can remain hidden, but when we are sensitive to them can make our lives more fruitful.

Report from the Legislature

Alberta's economic picture looks rosy

The accountability of the Workers' Compensation Board and the Appeals Commission will improve as a result of the government response to two reviews of the WCB.

In an effort to ensure that the resolution of disputes is conducted in a fair and consistent manner several changes are being made to the WCB and the Appeals Commission. These changes will include the adoption of an accountability framework audited by the Auditor General. Further, the knowledge of WCB case workers will be enhanced through improvements in the appeals process and the sharing of information, recording hearings, and the implementation of timelines for decisions.

The independence of the appeals system will also be increased by separating the Appeals Commission and the Office of Appeals Advisors from the WCB. The Appeals Commission will become a separate government entity, reporting to the Minister of Alberta Human Resources and Employment. A new advisory body, the Workers' Compensation Authority, will monitor the implementation of the changes. The Authority will also advise the Minister on the overall performance of the workers' compensation system.

In order to implement many of the changes to the WCB Alberta Human Resources and Employment will invite stakeholders to participate in a related symposium in September 2001. At the symposium, participants will be asked to provide input on changing the WCB and appeals process, as well as the development of performance measures and targets that will be incorporated in the accountability framework.

Further, in an effort to review long standing, contentious WCB claims, a one-time tribunal will be established in 2002.

The province's fiscal and performance results were released June 28, confirming 2000-01 was a year of outstanding revenues. In 2000-01, high energy prices increased government revenue to a record of $25.6 billion - $6.5 billion higher than originally forecast.

In 2000-01 the province had an initial surplus of $8.1 billion. However, unexpected but necessary expenditures towards energy cost assistance, farm income assistance, accelerated infrastructure programs and further assistance for health and children's services brought Alberta's year-end economic cushion to $64 billion.

Of this economic cushion, $54 billion dollars will be allocated towards debt repayment, $500 million will go towards the Alberta Heritage Science and Engineering Research Endowment Fund, and $500 million will go towards other balance sheet requirements.

Other highlights within the 2000-01 Annual Report confirm that health spending increased by 1.6 percent and education spending increased by 6.1 percent. Also, personal income taxes were cut by $1.1 billion, and education property taxes were cut by $13.5 million and frozen for future years. Also, approximately $1.2 billion was provided to Albertans for energy cost assistance.

The Fiscal Responsibility Act requires the government apply 75 percent of excess revenues to reduce debt and increase the financial assets of the province. In 2000-01, the province exceeded that requirement by applying nearly 80 percent.

Alberta's debt will be reduced to $6.6 billion this year, putting the province nine years ahead of the legislated debt repayment schedule and giving us the best credit rating in the country.

Canadian citizens growing tired of corporate welfare

-- CTF Asks Why Canada Continues to Play A Costly Game of Chicken With Brazil At Taxpayer Expense --

OTTAWA: The Canadian Taxpayers Federation (CTF) today reacted to the announcement from International Trade Minister Pierre Pettigrew (in concert with Industry Minister Brian Tobin) that the Government of Canada will offer up to a US $1.2 billion loan to Northwest Airlines to purchase 75 CRJ440 aircraft, a variant on Bombardier's popular 50-seat CRJ200 aircraft.

According to a news release from Bombardier, the total value of this contract with Northwest is estimated at US $1.68 billion.

Canadian aerospace giant Bombardier is competing against Embraer SA of Brazil to secure contracts from airlines around the world in the competitive regional jet market.

Governments from both countries have elevated this trade war at the World Trade Organizations (WTO) accusing each other of engaging in illegal state-sponsored export financing and subsidy schemes.

"Why should individual entrepreneurs in Halifax or a small company in Calgary continue to subsidize deep pocketed - not to mention hugely successful - transnational corporations such as Bombardier?" asked CTF Alberta director John Carpay.

"The Canadian government should instead be advocating for a level, subsidy-free international playing field, so Canadian companies can compete on price, quality, superior product design and unparalleled service agreements," Carpay added. "Using the leverage of government financing deals to secure competitive advantage does not serve Canada's long-term economic interests."

"To be fair, we may indeed be able to fight a short-term subsidy war with the Brazilians."

"But in the larger context and the longer term such a strategy does not help Canada in its trade wars with the United States or the Europeans in other fields of international procurement and competition," added Carpay. "The Canadian government is engaging in chequebook competition instead of rewriting the rules to once and for all close subsidy banks around the world."

Canada Health Act continues to be violated in abortion issue

Editors note: The following is an open letter to Alan Rock about the perceived continued violations of the Canada Health Act by 4 Provincial Governments.

Dear Mr. Rock,

In an open letter, May 8th, 2001 signed by Marilyn Wilson, Executive Director of CARAL, and myself, we invited your attention to the continuing violations of the Canada Health Act by provinces refusing to pay for abortions in clinics under Medicare. I followed this by two other letters with particular attention to New Brunswick and Manitoba. To date you have not responded to any of these letters.

Some time ago you had established a 4 million-dollar fund to monitor compliance by provinces with the Canada Health Act. You had assured Canadians in an article in the "Globe and Mail" that the provinces had promised to abide by the stipulations of the Canada Health Act.

Now that they have all received Federal money grants, some of them continue to violate the principles of the Canada Health Act by refusing to pay for a "medically necessary" procedure covered universally when done in a hospital.

A few months ago you had apparently written the offending provinces for explanations.

The situation is as serious as ever. Not only is it a blatant injustice that women in some provinces have access to abortions under Medicare but not in others. It is also dangerous to the health and life of women, since every week of delay (after 8 weeks) increases the danger of complications.

The Prime Minister had promised at the last election that he was going to protect women's "right to choose". This right does not exist in the offending provinces of Manitoba, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

Women in Canada look to you, as Minister of Health, to protect access to medical services to which they are entitled.

Are you going to use the Federal power to penalize provinces that violate the Canada Health Act, by withholding Federal transfer payments or are you going to do nothing and acquiesce thereby to an intolerable situation which jeopardizes women's health?

Your prompt response would be appreciated.

Sincerely,
Henry Morgentaler M.D.

Didsbury has an excellent campground

Dear Sir,

We recently camped with our R.V.'s in Rosebud Park to find our home away from home. As the public tends to complain more than compliment, we'd like to say some positive remarks about your campsite.

Congratulations to the management for keeping the campground clean and well looked after. The free firewood was a bonus.

The washrooms were tidy with an ample supply of towels and toilet paper.

Through the years, we've found management considerate in caring for our needs. The same couple have been there for a few years, and we hope to see them again in years to come.

Thank you, Didsbury, for such a fine facility! We plan to visit again!

Sincerely,

A Local Angle

ON THE MIDWAY

Didsbury woman enjoyed a midway of success

by Richard Westlund

While there is fame to be made through the Stampede through the various events like chuckwagon races and rodeo events, there is money to be made on the midway.

And Didsbury businesswoman Connie Harder knows that first hand.

The Calgary Stampede is always one of the busiest times of the year for Harder who has been selling specialty coffees and teas through two cargo trailers that have been transformed into concession stands.

Her business, Bean Brokers Inc., has been in operation for five years now and each year is busier than the last.

"We have always been very busy with our hot and cold drinks," said Harder, while taking a quick break from the action last Friday afternoon under a sweltering sun. "Our ice cappuccinos and caramel maccittos have been really popular. We have gone through so many ice cappuccinos and ice mochas so far this year."

While long busy days at the Stampede means there will be a payoff when the fair shuts down, things were not always rosy for Harder in Cow Town. Her first attempt at the Stampede didn't work out the way she thought it would. She changed her product to the coffees and teas and success soon followed.

"I tried something new and the people liked it," she said.

"The Stampede is a good source of business. It is the biggest fair there is."

While the heat and steady flow of customers could take their toll on someone who is working more than 12 hours a day, the Stampede has offered a few neat experiences for the businesswoman and those who help her out. One of her clients was an athlete from Britain who will be competing at the World Games in Edmonton.

"I have really enjoyed visiting with the International people. We have had a wide range of people coming through to buy refreshments."

Harder claims one of the reasons 2001 has been such a busy year for the Calgary Stampede is because she has been at the event on a repeat basis for five years now and she has been at the same locations each time.

"People wouldn't expect that something like this would thrive on repeat business, but they would be wrong. People come to the Stampede each year and they know where to find us. We see the same people from year to year and the same people throughout the week."

So far big events have meant big business for Harder. She has always been extremely busy at Stampede time but she will be extra busy for the rest of the year. Two days after Stampede shuts down, Harder will move the operation north to Edmonton for the Klondike Days. She will follow that up at the World Track and Field Championships, also in Edmonton, and will find time for the Big Valley Jamboree in Camrose.

RANGELAND DERBY

Chuckwagons a life-long passion for local man

by Richard Westlund

Norm Haynes loves his job as a head chuck wagon judge for two reasons.

First, the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede is the most-respected of events and second, as such, it also has the finest chuckwagon competition.

"It's the greatest outdoor show on earth and has the greatest chuck wagon races on earth," said the Didsburian who has held his position at the Stampede for 35 years.

Being a judge at the chucks is not always an easy one and for that reason Haynes has 12 other judges overseeing the Rangeland Derby Chuckwagon Races with him.

"It is up to us to call the penalties and infractions," said Haynes who takes his seat in the famed Eye in the Sky, which overlooks the track each night of the Stampede. "Nine judges sit in the Eye in the Sky, one is at the first turn, one is at the second turn, one is in the back stretch and one is at center field."

Norm Haynes

The job of a chuckwagon judge is a critical one to make sure the races are fair. Penalties are handed out for knocking over barrels, not having the stove in the back of the wagon and having a late outrider. Each infraction can be the difference between winning or losing and it is up to the judges to have a careful eye.

Chuckwagon driver Jason Glass seemed to have the 2001 championship sewn up, but because of a late outrider on Sunday night, the title instead went to Kelly Sutherland - a multiple winner.

Haynes' experience at the Calgary Stampede goes beyond making sure rules and regulations are followed. The cowboy, who lives 10 miles west of Didsbury, hasn't missed a Calgary Stampede since he was five years old. And in his years that led up to judging the chucks at the Stampede was an outrider, like his father Bill Haynes, and was a part of 11 Calgary Stampede Championships. In 1950 the father and son rode together in the championship race.

Haynes got his start in the Eye in the Sky after an accident on the track. He was soon after approached about continuing in the sport as an official and it was an easy transition for him to make. As head judge, he has hired many judges with similar experience.

"It's something that has always been in my family and it was natural to go in that direction. As a kid I spent my time jockeying and I am still a part of the sport."

The camaraderie was a big part of the Stampede spirit when Haynes was an outrider and the same holds true now that he is a judge.

"I have always enjoyed meeting new people and the friendships. But there aren't a lot of them that have been around since I started," said Haynes.

VOLUNTEERISM

Local man longest serving volunteer at Stampede

by Richard Westlund

The longest standing volunteer at the world famous Calgary Exhibition and Stampede lives in Didsbury's backyard.

Bruce Roy, a local Percheron breeder has been with the organization for 42 years on the heavy horse committee and has seen the Greatest Outdoor Show on Earth grow to what it is now through his years of volunteering.

"I was 22 when I started volunteering with the Stampede," said Roy, who started showing heavy horses a year earlier. "The chairman of the committee at the time, Tom McMillan from Okotoks asked if I would come on board as a volunteer."

Roy got into draught horses through location more than anything else. He grew up on land that was once part of the Bar U Ranch located just south of High River. At that time the ranch was known as the largest purebred Percheron breeding program in the world.

"I heard lots of stories about the horses and was fascinated by the history of the animal."

There have been many changes and big moments in the time that Roy has spent with the Calgary Stampede. But most recently he has had the moments he will cherish the most.

"The highlight would have been last Sunday during the World Champion Six Horse Hitch. To see the Saddledome filled and the philharmonic orchestra. That took 42 years to realize."

To Roy, serving the Stampede and the various draught horse associations is done more out of a passion than anything else.

"I guess I really just like serving the draught horse industry - it's a labour of love. It has always been a tremendous challenge to run the Heavy Horse show under the Stampede umbrella. I have met some tremendous people over the years doing this and have found some great fellowship."

"I think people in the heavy horse industry are some of the greatest people out there. They are a competitive group but are always the first ones to help out when you run into some trouble."

Roy's Stampede experience however is more reaching than just serving a board. His distinct voice was heard throughout the Saddledome as he announced the various halter and driving classes. He was also behind the microphone during the World Championship Six-Horse hitch. In addition to announcing winners and judges, Roy shares an extensive amount of background and colourful stories with the audience who may not have a lot of knowledge on the gentle giants known as Percherons, Belgians, Clydsdales and Shires.

"I find it a bit stressful but challenging and rewarding," said Roy.

Feather and Fetlock is another project that Roy has taken under his wing. The publication is the only heavy horse publication in Canada.

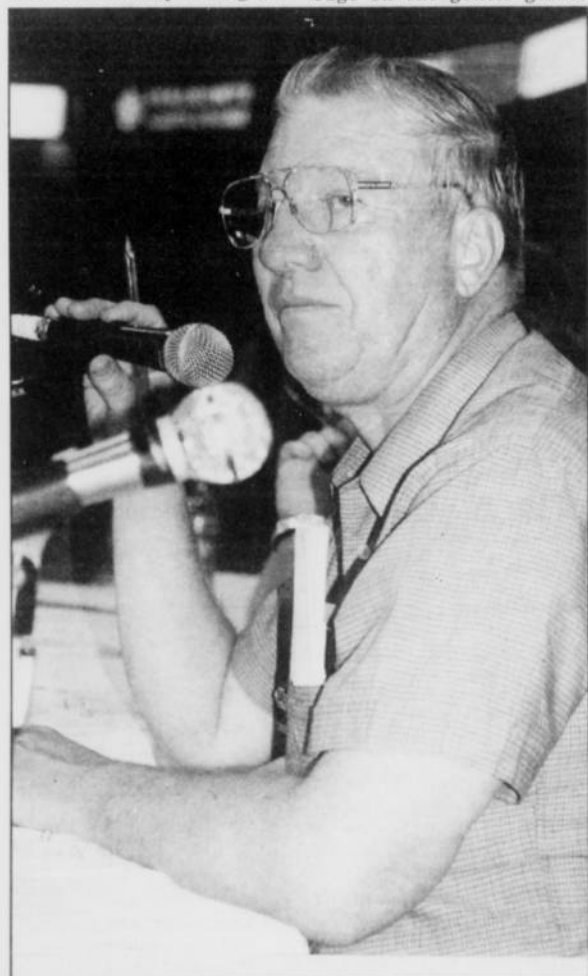

The local horseman took up the project because he enjoyed a similar experience when he was the secretary of the Percheron association and he saw a need for such a publication in Canada.

The quarterly magazine is a compilation of results and pictures from a variety of events that include draught horses.

When asked how long he would want to continue being a volunteer at the Stampede, Roy has his sights on the 50 year mark.

"I have my eyes set on 50 years. And then it is out to pasture."

CALGARY STAMPEDE

CATTLE AND COUNTRY MUSIC

Singing and cattle make up a local cowboy's life

by Richard Westlund

Pete Van Tighem has lived his entire life the Western way.

Which is no surprise why you can find him at the Calgary Stampede each year, showing his cattle and using his expertise as the Chair of the Beef Cattle Committee.

Van Tighem, who lives just five miles south west of Didsbury, had nine head of cattle at the Stampede, and has spent 30 years volunteering as a committee member.

"There are a lot of people who take the opportunity to show their animals at the Calgary Stampede," said Van Tighem in an interview at the Agricultural Buildings on the grounds a day before he showed. "There are two changeovers here to accommodate everyone."

Despite having two changeovers again this year, the numbers are down by a third. Van Tighem said the foot- and- mouth scare farmers faced in the spring had a lot to do with that. He said some people were afraid to make the commitment to come to the Stampede a couple of months ago because they were afraid their livestock would come into possible contact with the disease that has ravaged Europe.

Van Tighem has a lot of experience at the Stampede and that experience has transformed into many championships at the World's Greatest Outdoor Show on Earth. Most years he has one or more head hitched in Champion Alley and during an exceptional year in 1985 just about every one of his blonde and pinquaer cattle won their respective first-placed ribbons. And in the 90s he had a four-year stretch where his cattle won both the male and female Supreme Championships.

Back on the ranch, Van Tighem has a 100 head pure-bred cow and calf operation. But his reputation has grown from just a farmer who enjoys showing his wares.

Recently Van Tighem was discovered as a country music singer. After years of singing by himself in his tractor, he started to get interested in Karaoke. And his twanging voice impressed many.

Last fall in Water Valley, during a Canadian Country Music Hall of Fame karaoke contest, Bonnie Baldwin, owner of R and B Music knew that the voice was something special. Later at another event had him sing, unbeknownst in front of a Nashville record man, who immediately approached Van Tighem about cutting a CD in famed County-music city.

Van Tighem made the trip, cut the CD and was invited on stage at the Grande Ol' Opry to meet Country music legends like Connie Smith and Porter Wagner. "It was the experience of a lifetime," said Van Tighem whose CD title is A Tribute to Hank Williams. Currently Van Tighem is considering an offer to cut a second record. He has been told his music is likely to sell well in European markets.

With cattle, music and Stampede, Van Tighem reflects on the assertion he is country through and through and eagerly agrees.

"I have lived the County lifestyle my entire life."

ART

Local artists rewarded at Stampede show

Winners from Didsbury in the Junior Art Section of the Western Showcase at the Calgary Stampede were Stacey Jensen with a 2nd in pencil, Michael Whelan 3rd in water color, & Maegan Neufeld with an honorable mention in oils.

Chrystal Wilshusen who won first in the rural Scholarships class was presented with a plaque & a certificate at a special reception for the winners of the Calgary & Rural sections. She will use her $1000.00 prize for her course at Red Deer College, the prize money is paid directly to the Institute of higher learning of the winners choice.

Those art students from Didsbury who did not get into the prizes were picked to have their work displayed in a special section. There were too many entries to have all the work on display. These students were Kent Mullen & Chantelle Wilshusen from Joyce Mullen's art class, & Candice Montieth & Katie Ahl from Elsie Arshers art class.

Congratulations go to these young people for their effort. The co-ordinator for the Scholarship section stated that this years group of entries was the best they have ever had.

PEEP program gives hope and changes lives

"Life is pretty good right now. It's going great!" exclaimed Kris Carnochan from his job site. And for the 20-year-old Didsbury man, that's a shift. Kris is currently enrolled in the Personal Empowerment and Employment Program (PEEP) through Didsbury Outreach School, and he claims the program is changing his life.

Kris said he used to believe he would spend his life working at manual labour jobs, because he wasn't capable of anything more. Now, because of his participation in the PEEP program, that is beginning to change. "The PEEP facilitators", said Kris, "showed me skills that I didn't know I had. They showed me I had more potential than I thought I had. They taught me anything is possible."

The PEEP program accepts applicants who are between the age of 17 and 29, who are "at risk" of not returning to school, or entering the work world. The PEEP program has been offered for several years at Innisfail's Career High, and it was so successful, an application was made for federal funding for the other four Chinook's Edge School Division Outreach Schools. Three of the four were successful. Sylvan Lake, Olds and Didsbury Outreaches began their PEEP programs for the first time in April 2001, with approximately 14 students at each site.

Each PEEP site received about $80,000 in federal funding, which covered the four-week classroom instruction portion at the beginning of the program, as well as a subsidy for employers for the remaining 3 months. In the classroom portion, participants were exposed to a variety of topics, including job searching skills, interviewing techniques, and conflict resolution. They also did a number of job shadows, and received one-on-one counseling aimed at uncovering personal interests. Then, with the assistance of their facilitators, students entered the work force, for a three-month period. Their employers were offered a $4/hr subsidy to help in the training.

Not all employers took the subsidy, but Chris Zofchak, Top Notch Exteriors, Didsbury, said the subsidy enabled his small business to take on a new employee. Zofchak hired PEEP participant, Kris Carnochan and is training Kris to work in his vinyl siding business. "It takes time to train someone to do the job, and build his or her confidence. The subsidy helped me give Kris a chance," Zofchak said so far, the experience has been extremely positive; Kris works hard and is learning quickly.

Kris has enjoyed it too, and said his job with Top Notch Exteriors is a huge improvement on what he calls "grunt labour". Kris said about his new job, "here they make you think." Kris isn't sure if he'll continue doing vinyl siding for the rest of his life. However, he admits his new job and the PEEP program, have given him the courage to realize he can set his sights high and successfully reach them.

Chinook's Edge hopes to re-apply for a grant to run the PEEP program at the four Outreach locations, next year.

The summer road trip:

Minimize distractions from children and have a safe journey

It's summer. Thousands of families are traveling along Alberta's highways heading to their holiday destination.

These driving holidays can sometimes be hard on children.

Many children find the drives boring, confining and very long. Parents are always struggling to find innovative ways to keep their children's minds off the long drive.

"It's important to keep children comfortable and content on long journeys - not only to increase their enjoyment of the journey, but to minimize distractions for the driver," says Dan VanKeeken of the Alberta Motor Association, a partner in the MISSION POSSIBLE Traffic Safety Initiative. "Attending to restless, irritable children takes your attention from the road - and that can be deadly."

The AMA offers these suggestions for ensuring a safe, enjoyable trip.

- Make sure all passengers are properly buckled up at all times. Children 12 years and under should be in a proper child restraint in the back seat.

- Plan breaks along the way to keep yourself mentally and physically fresh. Let the kids get out of the car to go out and play. They need to burn off some energy.

Answer the question "are we there yet?" as precisely as possible. Don't just answer "soon". It's very frustrating for children. You can help kids with this question by turning it into a game. Tell your children about the landmarks they can watch out for during the drive. As you drive by one landmark, you can point out how far it is to your destination.

Children love to be navigators. Provide them with a map. Circle the starting point and the final destination. Let them tell you what city you will pass next. If your children are too young to read, they can point out buildings or landmarks along the way.

Ask your children to pack a "fun bag" with some of their favourite toys and books. Children love playing a role in getting ready for a holiday.

Parents can also bring along some special toys that are rarely used. They can add a favourite blanket and a tape deck or CD player with sing-along tunes.

Playing road games can keep children busy. For example, ask your children to look for certain licence plates, buildings, trees or certain colour vehicle. This game is similar to a treasure hunt and parents can always offer a special reward to the winner. A note of caution, stop playing the game while it is still fun. If a game goes on for too long, children can become bored and cranky.

Finally, some children suffer from motion sickness. Very young children cannot tell their parents that they are not feeling well.

Constant crying and trying to get out of the car seat can mean that your child is suffering from motion sickness. Talk to your doctor and find out what you can do to make car travel easier for your child. Partners in the MISSION POSSIBLE Traffic Safety Initiative are working to reduce the number and severity of collisions on Alberta's roads. Partners include the Alberta Motor Association, municipal police services, RCMP, regional health authorities, government, Coalition of Alberta Automobile Insurers, corporations industry and concerned individuals across the province.

On average collisions annually kill 400 Albertans and injure 23,000, at a total societal cost of some $3.8 billion.

At The Kitchen Table

by
Noreen Olson

Guest Columnist this week is Garden Guru, Composter and Conservationist Mildred Mulch. Miss Mulch is going to answer some commonly asked questions submitted by her faithful readers and fellow gardeners. Miss Mulch's own garden is totally pest and disease free, her annuals begin growing the day they are set out, her perennials are lush and laden with bloom, no grass grows past her perfect edges. The few weeds that grow in her garden are easily hand pulled, aphids ignore her Lupins and she long ago eliminated chick weed and groundsel from her entire property. Blue Birds and Goldfinch sing sweetly in her ornamental shrubs, Hummingbirds practice ballet at her feeders while her lawns and hedges sweep gloriously green to the edge of untouched, old growth forest. Miss Mulch's garden is unfortunately not open to the public as it exists only in her mind.

Some of the following letters may have been edited for clarity.

Dear Miss Mulch, The thumb and thumb nail on my sister in laws right hand is permanently stained and cracked. She says it's from gardening. Do you think it is safe for her to prepare food? Is this condition contagious? L.G.

Dear L.G. Your sister in law's condition is caused from deadheading petunias and pansies and it is not contagious. It is safe for her to prepare food but she probably does not have time to do so anyway so don't worry about it. Why don't you take her a sandwich occasionally. M.M.

Dear Miss Mulch, In a corner of my garden there is a really lovely looking plant that has not yet bloomed. How can I tell if it is a flower or a weed. P.G.

Dear P.G. Take a firm grip, low on the plant's main stem, and pull. If it breaks off at ground level leaving nasty tendrils that begin growing even as you watch, it is indeed a weed. If however it pulls out nicely, root and all, it was a flower and probably one you have always wanted. M.M.

Dear Miss Mulch, This Spring I planted lots and lots of Lobelia. Some of it is very nice but a lot of it just died. How can I avoid this problem next year? R.J.

Dear R.J. All Lobelias are born with a death wish. The plants that live are probably very unhappy for having been thwarted from their true calling. Take solace in knowing that the little dried up brown ones are the truly fulfilled ones. M.M.

Dear Miss Mulch, Some of the leaves on my Monks Hood and Globe Thistle are sort of folded in and there are worms in there. I also have aphids all over my Lupins and they are sticky and awful. Please comment. W.H.

Dear W.H. Two comments come to mind, eeeeeeyew and yuck.

Dear Miss Mulch, I have great difficulty maintaining any kind of Gardening program. Can you recommend a schedule or timetable that I might follow?

Dear T.F. I can only share with you the program that I follow. Walk through your garden and watch for the plant or plants that seem nearest to death. This may be from lack of water, insect infestation, overcrowding or being choked with weeds. Tend this plant first and by the time you have finished with it there will be another that is in equally desperate circumstances. When that one has been rescued there will be another. There is no end. In Medicine I think this is called Triage. I call it the JAID method or Just Ahead of Impending Doom. M.M.

Miss Mulch regrets that she cannot answer more questions today but she has left her office window open and she can hear some hanging plants making choking sounds so she has to go and water them.

Protect yourself from hamburger disease

Alberta Health and Wellness cautions consumers to take precautions against E. coli 0157 or "hamburger disease."

"Despite sophisticated food safety practices by farmers and within the meat industry, there are no guarantees that ground meat on store shelves is 100 per cent free from contamination of bacteria, including E. coli 0157 and salmonella," says Dr. Karen Grimsrud, deputy provincial health officer with Alberta Health and Wellness, Edmonton. To prevent illness, consumers are encouraged to take simple food-handling precautions when cooking meat:

- Thaw meat in the refrigerator.
- Cook meat thoroughly.
- Wash your hands before and after handling food and raw meats.
- Keep meat separate from other foods to avoid cross contamination. Also known as Haemorrhagic Colitis, E. coli 0157 is nicknamed "hamburger disease" because it is often associated with ground beef; however, it is also linked with undercooked beef, pork and poultry products.

LIFESTYLES

Focus on the Family

QUESTION: If power is so important to teen-agers, then it must play a key role in family dynamics. How does it work itself out at home?

DR. DOBSON: You've asked a very perceptive question. It is a wise parent who knows intuitively how to transfer power, or independence, to the next generation. That task requires a balancing act between two equally dangerous extremes.

They dare not set their teen-agers free before they are mature enough to handle the autonomy — even though they are screaming for it. Adolescents still need parental leadership, and parents are obligated to provide it — that's the law of the land. One of the characteristics of those who acquire power too early is a prevailing attitude of disrespect for authority. It extends to teachers, ministers, police officers, judges, and even to God himself. Such an individual has never yielded to parental leadership at home. Why should he or she submit himself to anyone else? For a rebellious teen-ager, it is only a short step from there to drug abuse, sexual experimentation, running away and so on.

The early acquisition of power has claimed countless young victims by this very process. On the other hand, there is an equally dangerous mistake to be avoided at the latter end of adolescence. We must not wait too long to set our young adults free. Self-determination is a basic human right to which every adult is entitled. To withhold that liberty too long is to incite wars of revolution. My good friend Jay Kesler observed that Mother England made that specific mistake with her children in the American colonies.

They grew to become rebellious "teen-agers" who demanded their freedom. Still, she refused to release them and unnecessary bloodshed ensued. Fortunately, England learned a valuable lesson from that painful experience. Some 171 years later, she granted a peaceful and orderly transfer of power to another tempestuous offspring named India.

Revolution was averted. At the risk of being redundant, let me summarize our goal as parents: First, we must not transfer power too early, even if our children take us daily to the battlefield. Mothers who make that mistake are some of the most frustrated people on the face of the Earth. On the other hand, we must not retain parental power too long. Control will be torn from our grasp if we refuse to surrender it voluntarily.

The granting of self-determination should be matched stride for stride with the arrival of maturity, culminating with complete release during early adulthood. Sounds easy, doesn't it?

We all know better. I consider this orderly transfer of power to be one of the most delicate and difficult responsibilities in the entire realm of parenthood.

QUESTION: Our son will be leaving for college next fall. Is there anything we can do to help ease the transition from home to dorm life?

DR. DOBSON: For starters, author Joan Wester Anderson suggests that you make sure that your teen has the basic skills necessary to survive dorm life. Can he operate a washer and dryer, stick to a budget, handle a checkbook, get along with roommates and manage his time wisely? It's important as well to prepare your son for the negative aspects of campus life. Too often, adults present a rosy portrait of college as "the best years of life," which creates unrealistic expectations that lead to disappointment.

Remind your son that homesickness is to be expected, and that he can call home collect anytime, just to chat. At a dime a minute after working hours, the costs of telephone usage should be within everyone's reach financially. During the first semester away, letters and treats from home can ease the pain of separation anxiety.

And be pleasant when that young man returns for visits. If he feels like an intruder, he just might decide to visit someone else's home for future vacations. Going away to college is a milestone for those who embark on that journey.

With proper planning, it can be a positive time of growth for the whole family.

Didsbury Library News

Local library is offering good summer reading options

Summer's here and the reading is easy... check out your favorite author for those lazy summer afternoons. If you cannot find what you want on the shelf, just ask our friendly staff to place a hold on it for you. The book you want may just be out or may be more readily available from one of our partner libraries in the Parkland Regional Library System.

There is no extra charge for this service and holds will often be delivered in a couple of days. You can search our online catalogue at the library or from home by logging onto our website: <http://dml.pr.ab.ca>. Ask us to show you how!

If you are heading for the lake or a campsite and do not wish to risk exposing a library book to the elements, check out the shelves of books for sale. Choose from popular romance or mystery, fiction and non-fiction. Fill a bag of your choices for only $2.00. All proceeds from used book sales go towards purchasing new books throughout the year.

And speaking of new books, check out these biographies:

In R.M. Patterson: A Life of Great Adventure by David Finch, the reader travels with Patterson to the Peace River country of Alberta where he homesteaded, and on to the Northwest Territories where Patterson lived out his dream of looking for gold on the South Nahanni - the River of Death.

And a favorite of the Entertainment industry: My Father's Daughter a memoir by Tina Sinatra with Jeff Coplon. "My father didn't die - he escaped." What was it about Frank Sinatra's life that would make his daughter say such a thing!

We also have books to answer other pressing issues such as First Aid Companion for Dogs and Cats or books of games and crafts to fill your children's summer days!

On temporary loan from Westglen School, a whole spinner rack full of the most popular young adult novels: don't miss this opportunity to finish your favourite series!

Your library has more than just books for you to borrow. Have you seen our ever expanding collection of magazines? "Birds and Blooms" and "Family Fun" are two that have much to offer in the way of summer projects and crafts. Check out "Wildflower" to help you identify those lovely plants on your summer wanderings. Are you considering a writing career or sideline?

"Writer's Digest" is for you then; full of tips and interviews such as this month's advice from none other than Stephen King!

Special thanks to all those who donate books to the library. Your contributions, whether they end up on the shelf or for sale, help us to provide better library service to Didsbury and area.

Passport to Paradise

Seniors can choose to give their green thumbs a rest and exercise their appreciation for gardening during an upcoming bus trip to the Devonian Gardens.

On Tuesday, August 7th at 8:30am, the Didsbury Community Bus will be departing for the Devonian Gardens near Devon, Alberta.

Didsbury 5-0 Club Trip Co-ordinator, Florence Cawsey, says the trip is open to any senior (whether they are a Club member or not) for a nominal fee of $5.00. "It's really an inexpensive means of entertainment," says Cawsey who has organized many similar excursions in the past. "...you can either bring your own lunch or choose to buy one from the concession at the Gardens, so it's really up to the individual how much they will be spending that day."

Additional trip options include a snack at a rest stop north of Red Deer in route to the Gardens and a smorgasbord supper at the Red Deer Restaurant on the way home.

The deadline for registering for the Devonian Gardens trip is two days prior to departure. "We hope to see a good crowd come out again this year," says Cawsey. "If you require a younger person to accompany you, we will let them come along as well. The bus holds 40 people so we should have plenty of room."

Anyone interested in joining in on the Devonian Gardens Bus Tour can do so by registering with Florence Cawsey at 335-3327.

The next upcoming bus trip for the Club will be to Stage West on August 22nd to see the comedy "The Foursome".

Ready, Set,...Create!

Jean Flett - Director Didsbury Ag Society

There's only one month left to prepare your entries for the multitude of prizes up for grabs at the 18th Annual Agricultural Fair, being held August 18th at the Curling Rink.

This year there is nearly $2000.00 to be won in regular prizes along with over $1500.00 in special prizes. These special prizes, of cash or gift certificates donated by involved citizens and businesses of Didsbury make the show more interesting and rewarding," comments Bob Davidson - one of the Show's Organizers and Ag Society Director.

Co-organizer Jean Flett, says she anticipates approximately 135 entrants and 1300 - 1400 entries. New this year is a special class addition to the Bench Show. "For the first time we are introducing a new category in our arts and crafts section for Kids six years old and under." There's also a Senior's category for anyone 65 years and older. Under the general category there lies the "Horticulture" section including flowers, house plants, vegetables, fruits, grains and forage crops. "Domestic Products" will once again include those entries involving preserves and baking, while "Creative Arts" will involve anything that is sewn, knitted, quilted, woven or stitched. Celebrating our heritage will be the "Pioneer Crafts" class listing such entries as home-made butter, noodles, soap and/or candles and "Hobby Crafts" which encompasses items ranging from handcrafted dolls to papertole. Classes involving photography and artwork will also be featured.

With so many entries & prizes to be judged and displayed Flett says the need for volunteers assistance will be great. "We really could use help setting up the displays on Wednesday (Aug. 15th) and Friday (Aug. 17th) evenings and in helping the Judges Friday evening." Anyone able to lend a hand is encouraged to contact either Jean Flett @ 335-8123 or Bob Davidson at 335-3707.

The Didsbury Bench Show will be open for viewing directly following the parade (at approximately 11:30 am) on Saturday, August 18th. Exhibits may be entered on Thursday evening (August 16th) from 6:00pm - 9:00pm or Friday (August 17th) from 3:00pm - 6:00pm.

Lots in store for Kids at Fair & Rodeo

Those lazy, hazy days of summer are about to become doused in excitement with the Didsbury Fair and Rodeo fast approaching.

Starting Friday, August 17th, the action will begin with the activities carrying through to Sunday, August 19th. "We're organizing a street dance to take place just outside the swimming pool facility on Friday night," explains Ag Society Director & Charter Member, Ken Anderson...."we're really hoping that by bringing the dance outside this year we'll get an even better turnout. Everyone is welcome."

"It starts at 8:00pm and we'll have a deejay coming out to take care of all the music."

Save some energy for Saturday though. According to Anderson's estimations you'll need it!

Everything from an Astro Jump to a mechanical bull to an 18 foot Super Slide to a 35 foot obstacle course will be on hand to entertain Kids of all ages. "You can buy a bracelet and ride the attractions all day or purchase individual ride tickets for $2.00." To help stay fueled for an entire days worth of entertainment, a mobile concession stand will also be available.

New this year to the Fair will be the tricks and training techniques on display at the Dog Show being held Sunday at 1:00pm.

"This will be similar to the Superdog Shows you see elsewhere," says Anderson. "It's a company out of Lacombe." While the Kids are taking in the various canine capers, adults can head to the Tractor Pull taking place at the same time on the north-east side of the pool.

"We tried to work in as much entertainment as we could within the budget we had," says Anderson. "...it just wouldn't be the same without something for the Kids."

Ken Anderson

Howard Krebs

Cattle Penning expected to Draw Pros at Rodeo

When you've organized cattle penning events as long as Howard Krebs, you get a feel for how the event will run. "We should have a pretty good turnout again this year," says Ag Society Director Howard Krebs.

Krebs and many other volunteers will be out in full force the weekend of August 18th during the Didsbury Fair & Rodeo.

Cattle Penning - for those who have yet to be exposed to the sport - involves the herding and organizational skills of three horsemen charged with the task of penning 30 head of cattle in a frantic race against time. "We expect to have about 80 teams this year," says Krebs. "...once again they will be divided up into two different classes; from 1-6 and 6 or better."

Competitors typically come from central & southern Alberta to compete at the annual event. "It's really entertaining to come out and watch these fellows in action...We do a lot of travelling to various competitions across Alberta, B.C. & Saskatchewan and we really enjoy doing this."

Anyone wishing to register a cattle penning team for this year's rodeo can do so by calling Howard Krebs at 335-4252.

Library hosts Journey through Time

Unlock the key to your child's imagination with "Tales through Time" this year's Summer Reading Program at the Didsbury Library.

Any child ages preschool (4 years) to grade 6 is encouraged to register and partake in activities and crafts focused on a journey through the decades. "It's really aimed at encouraging the Kids to read and stay interested in books over the summer months," says Storyteller and Program Co-ordinator, Lesley Winfield.

But reading is just the beginning of the journey. "We also play games, do crafts, and vie for prizes," says Winfield. A total of 10 classes are held throughout the week and are broken down according to grade level.

"We do one session in the morning from 10:00am - 11:30am and one in the afternoon from 1:30pm - 3:00pm each week from Tuesday to Friday."

All classes are free of charge and run to August 18th. If you are interested in registering your child or volunteering some time to help with arts and crafts or game activities, please call the Didsbury Library at 335-3142.

Fastest time ...

Water Valley Cowboy Mark Nugent didn't win the $50,000 prize but he did post the fastest time at the Stampede on Friday afternoon. Alberta cowboys did win some of the $50,000 purses although no local competitors got into the serious money.

O'Neill misses $50,000 payout in the Stampede saddle bronc

by Barry Williams

For eight seconds, literally, defending Canadian saddle bronc champion Glen O'Neill, of Water Valley, could only sit on the fence at the Calgary Stampede.

Despite riding all five mounts at the Calgary Stampede, held from July 5-15, 2001, O'Neill, of Water Valley, could only sit on the fence, watch and wait to see if Ross Kreutzer, of Maple Creek, Sask., could put together a score of 88 aboard Zippy Delivery to capture the richest single event purse on the rodeo circuit.

Kreutzer and Zippy Delivery accomplished their mission as Kreutzer spurred out the 88 to win the coveted $50,000.

O'Neill, who won the Stampede average by compiling 252 points on three head, worth around $13,000, was the second rider out in the $50,000 winner take all showdown and set the pace earlier by spurring out an 87 aboard Sandpiper to move into top spot for a few minutes with a total of 173 on two head. Earlier in the day, O'Neill rode John Wayne to a total score of 86, while Kreutzer rolled out an 86 on top of 74 Drywall.

Kreutzer, the last man out in the four cowboy ride-off, needed an 88 to take away the podium from O'Neill.

"The next eight seconds during Kreutzer's ride will be the most agonizing seconds of O'Neill's life here at the Stampede," said rodeo announcer Bob Tallman, commenting on CBC's coverage of Prime Time Calgary Stampede.

"Believe me, Glen will be watching this ride with great intensity as every emotion will be going through his body with every kick of Slippery Delivery, a horse known to carry cowboys to the pay window at the Calgary Stampede," added Tallman.

In the bull riding competition, defending Canadian Bull riding champion Rob Bell, of Water Valley, made the $50,000 short go-around but virtue to being bucked off Hamburger Hill failed to qualify for the $50,000 final round.

After chalking up a 5/6 split in the Stampede go-arounds by compiling a combined time of 33.3 seconds on three head, veteran calf roper Joe Lucas, of Carstairs, took a no time in the $50,000 showdown.

A former $50,000 Stampede winner, Lucas picked up earnings of $2,832 for a half minute of work. Lucas made the short go for the $50,000.

Defending Canadian bull riding champion, Rob Bell, of Water Valley, won $1,132 at the Stampede, which crowned three Canadians, Kruetzer in saddle bronc, Scott Schiffner in bull riding and steer wrestler Greg Cassidy.

Local lacrosse enthusiast part of City Championship

by Richard Westlund

An 11-year-old Didsburian opened some eyes this year as he played some impressive and exciting lacrosse.

Matt Metka made the commute for practices and games to Calgary to play for the Axemen - a pee wee lacrosse team.

And in his first year at that level, Metka was sharp, winning the scoring title among the 24 teams and leading the Axemen to the Calgary Pee Wee B Lacrosse Championship.

"It felt great," said Metka describing the championship he helped his team win.

"It was a tough series against the Calgary Hornets."

The two lacrosse teams finished first in their respective divisions.

Metka was nine-years-old when he started playing the sport. A hockey player during the winter months, Metka describes lacrosse as something he loves to do.

"It is one of my favourite sports in the whole world."

The appeal of lacrosse seems obvious to those who love to watch and play hockey - especially box lacrosse. The game is fast, rough and there is a definite emphasis on offence, said Metka.

While the first-year pee wee player is excited about the championship win and a dream season that saw just five losses in total including league

"I am very excited about the Roughnecks. I think more kids are going to like lacrosse."

- Matt Metka, lacrosse player play and tournaments, Metka is more excited about a professional team coming to Calgary and he is positive it is going to drum up interest for the sport among local youths.

"I am very excited about the Roughnecks. I think more kids are going to like lacrosse."

The constant drives from Didsbury to Calgary for practices and games displayed a great deal of commitment to the team.

And while having a team in Didsbury would mean no commute at all, and Metka believes eventually a local league will be established, he is more than happy to make the drive to Calgary to play the sport he loves.

Metka will now take a break from the sport and doesn't plan on playing field lacrosse this year. He said he prefers to play the faster and rougher version of the sport called box lacrosse.

YOGA! and other Didsbury recreation events

YOGA! Summer has crept up on us. Summer holidays have begun, and there is so much for community members to do this summer!

The Didsbury Aquatic Centre has a public swim scheduled daily, call 335-7369 for details. Other programming is still running throughout the summer such as Early Bird, Aquacize, 50+ Fun & Fit, Adult Swim, Lap Swim, and other regular programs. Remember, the schedule did change slightly starting July 1, so confirm the hours of your swims! YOGA! We're also taking an interested list for Discover Scuba and Open Water Scuba Certification courses. Let us know if you're interested!

The Summer Fun program is up and running, and we anticipate that this is the first year of many years to come of a successful program. YOGA! The coordinator and assistant have been hired and are looking forward to days filled with crafts, free time, field trips, swimming and more. There is still room available in the weekly program. Call 335-7369 for more information or to register.

YOGA! We're looking forward to horse shows and the Ag. Fair and Rodeo during the summer months in the recreation department as well.

The summer gives us an opportunity to look ahead to the fall and winter for programming activities in the community. YOGA! If these are any recreation programs that you would like to see run in Didsbury, please give us a call at 335-7369 and let us know what they are!

Oh, and have I mentioned that we are currently taking an interested list for YOGA classes? A beginner youth yoga class during the days in the summer as well as an adult beginner YOGA class in the evenings of the summer are being organized as you read! The classes would run one day/night per week for six weeks. If you are interested, please call 335-7369 NOW!

Until next time, have a great summer!
